OUR MISSION

We support nonfiction filmmakers with critical early-stage funding and mentorship to launch distinctive, story-driven, and cinematic films.
Our Co-Founders

Catapult was born from our common desire to fill the funding gap and to support artful films.

Looking back over the last decade since we started Catapult Film Fund, we could not be more thrilled with how far we have come. In the spring of 2010, we were introduced to each other by a mutual friend. We talked for a long time about documentary filmmaking and what was lacking on the funding landscape.

Bonni was an established documentary filmmaker who had made many films through her company, Actual Films. She understood firsthand the struggle to raise development funding for her projects. Lisa was a lawyer, more recently working in arts education, who wanted to start a fund for filmmakers where the need was greatest and modest grants could make an outsized impact.

We started with a soft launch by reaching out to trusted colleagues at other film organizations and received 40 applications. Today, we receive over a thousand applications a year through an open call. Much has changed over the years, except for our dedication to offering support for artful and cinematic nonfiction storytelling.

We are filled with admiration for the extraordinary talent of those we support; the opportunity to support and nurture artists at this early stage, who have something specific to say, is a privilege.
OUR APPROACH

We focus exclusively on early support, when funding and mentorship is the hardest to find and considered the riskiest to give.
We believe in funding opportunity

“[A] rare and precious resource on the funding map for international filmmakers. Seed funding is seed faith and it is always a treasure. Your support helped us unlock additional funding.”

Shirley Abraham and Amit Madheshiya, Directors
Searching For Saraswati (development grant 2017)

“I was filming but putting the footage in a suitcase. I was not sure what the film could be. [Catapult] allowed me to cut a sample reel that raised a big chunk of production funding. It was a game changer.”

Joe Brewster and Michèle Stephenson, Directors
Going To Mars: The Nikki Giovanni Project (development grant 2017)

“As a single working parent, Catapult’s support was truly catalytic and came at a time when I really needed it.”

Loira Limbal, Director
Through The Night (development grant 2017)

“[Catapult was] the first foundation to fund us and it was very important for our lift off. Their funding made our trailer possible as our angel’s money wasn’t going to stretch that far.”

Nicole Newnham and Jim LeBrecht, Directors
Crip Camp (development grant 2016)

“[O]ne of the first funders to support my filmmaking… by far among the most thoughtful, responsive and artistically-minded funders in the U.S. documentary space today.”

Malika Zouhali-Worrall, Director and Rough Cut Retreat mentor

OUR PROGRAMS

We take a chance on filmmakers who have ideas for artful and compelling nonfiction films that make us think differently about the world.
Development Grants

Our signature program awards 20 filmmakers with funding and mentorship when support is hardest to come by. Our Development Grants help filmmakers create pitch materials to unlock production support and additional opportunities.

“It was such a gift to have Catapult's support... from the first month I moved into production through the next ten years as I worked to finish the film, especially early on when funding was lean and I was still developing my vision for the story.”

Jacqueline Olive, Director
Always in Season (development grant 2010)

Momentum Grants

Our Momentum Grants are available to prior grantees when an infusion of funds can help them continue making progress. This grant is a reflection of our ongoing support of filmmakers throughout the lifecycle of the film.

“[A] tireless advocate for international stories, by international filmmakers... Both the initial development fund and the momentum grant enabled us to make significant progress in footage acquisition and to begin the editing process.”

S. Leo Chiang, Producer
Our Time Machine (development grant 2016)
Research Grants

Our newest initiative expands our commitment to supporting filmmakers at the earliest possible stage. Our Research Grants sustain filmmakers as they explore a new concept while also reducing barriers to entry for a diverse slate of voices.

“I am really grateful for the time and support that has really brought my project to life. I think this was more than I ever could have asked for. I am walking away with a solid core application, a clear idea of story, and potential partners as the film develops.”

Tracy Jarrett, Director
Ghost Dads (research grant 2022)

Mentorship

Catapult further expands the impact of the program grants by providing customized mentorship to supported filmmakers, which often continues until the film’s distribution. This ranges from one-on-one support to cohort-based peer groups.

“The mentorship aspect of the program is a shining light. With one of my projects, what I wanted even more than the financial support were the ideas and critiques of the Catapult team.”

Sara Archambault, Director
What Democracy Looks Like (development grant 2020)
OUR COMMUNITY

We partner with collaborators who share our mission of supporting independent filmmakers and the important stories they tell.
Launched in 2016, Rough Cut Retreat (RCR) offers a one-of-a-kind mentorship experience for filmmakers who lack traditional support networks.

A partnership between Catapult Film Fund and True/False Film Fest, RCR was borne out of a shared mission of supporting ambitious, idiosyncratic approaches to nonfiction storytelling.

For a week each year, five film teams are paired with industry mentors to move films from rough cut to fine cut with an eye on winter festival deadlines. The result is a supportive and engaged atmosphere during a critical moment in the filmmaking process.

“A chance to gather with like-minded folks, spending our days (and nights) discussing the deepest layers of nonfiction filmmaking. It’s five days of bliss.”

David Wilson, Co-Conspirator
True/False Film Fest

Our Future

Our commitment to early-stage support is more essential than ever.

We know our programs are transformative for the documentary community. We also know that early support is critical for filmmakers to navigate the rapidly changing industry.

As we embark on this next chapter, we remain guided by our mission, approach, and community. We are excited to envision new ways to propel our essential work forward and strengthen the nonfiction landscape in the process.
